Culture

Culture

Day of the Dead(Mexico)

Families welcome back the souls of ancestors with bright marigold flower paths, beautifully layered home altars (ofrendas), and celebratory skeletal parades.

Holi(India)

A joyous spring celebration representing the triumph of good over evil, where communities gather outdoors to dance and splash each other with vivid, multi-colored organic powders (gulal).

Rio Carnival(Brazil)

The world's largest party explodes across Rio de Janeiro, powered by hypnotic Afro-Brazilian samba rhythms, massive local street bands (blocos), and monumental floats filled with feathered dancers.

Destinations

Amalfi Coast & Ravello

Angkor Wat, Cambodia

Amalfi Coast & Ravello, Italy

World Heritage destination is a masterclass in Mediterranean historic preservation and maritime heritage.

Petra, Jordan

A stunning desert metropolis carved entirely into vibrant rose-red sandstone cliffs by the Nabataeans over 2,000 years ago.

Angkor Wat, Cambodia

The largest religious monument in the world, spanning a massive 400 acres deep within the jungle.

Cuisine

Kaseki dining and Udon(Japan)

Meticulous multi-course presentation emphasizing seasonal harmony, subtle dashi broths, and fresh wheat noodles.

Tomatokeftedes & Fava(Greece)

crispy tomato fritters and pureed yellow split peas dressed with extra virgin olive oil.

A comfort dish reflecting Cape Malay heritage, consisting of spiced, curried minced meat baked beneath a creamy, golden egg-based custard topping.

Travel Tips

Sacred Site Dress Codes

Always pack a lightweight scarf, pashmina, or sarong. Destinations like the temples of Thanjavur, shrines in Kyoto, or the ruins of Petra require shoulders and knees to be covered.

The Barefoot Rule

In many Asian heritage sites (including India, Japan, and Cambodia), shoes must be removed before entering. Recommend packing slip-on shoes and dark-coloured socks that won't show dirt easily.

Photography Ethics

Always look for signage regarding flash photography, especially inside ancient tombs (like the Giza Pyramids) or cave temples where flash can degrade ancient paint and rock art.

Beating the Crowds

The ultimate rule for historical monuments (like the Colosseum or Machu Picchu) is to book the first entry slot of the morning (usually 6:00 AM – 7:30 AM). This guarantees pristine lighting for photos and avoids tour bus crowds.

Cash is Still King

While cities like Rome or Singapore are highly digitalized, regional heritage pockets (like desert camps in Jaisalmer or local markets in Oaxaca) heavily rely on local cash for small purchases, street food, and tips.

Festival Booking Windows

For major events like Rio Carnival or Yi Peng Lantern Festival, flights and accommodations should be secured 6 to 8 months in advance. Last-minute prices soar up to 300%.
